Is Life
Worth Living?

That depends upon the Liver. If the Liver is inactive the whole system is out of order—the breath is bad, digestion poor, head dull or aching, energy and hopefulness gone, the spirit is depressed, a heavy weight exists after eating, with general despondency and the blues. The Liver is the housekeeper of the health; and a harmless, simple remedy that acts like Nature, does not constipate afterwards or require constant taking, does not interfere with business or pleasure during its use, makes Simmons Liver Regulator a medical perfection.

I have tested its virtues personally, and know that for Dyspepsia, Biliousness and Throbbing Headache, it is the best remedy ever the collector saw. Have tried forty cases remedy before Simmons Liver Regulator, and none of them gave more than temporary relief, but the Regulator not only relieved but cured.

GIRAFFES IN EUROPE.

THE DIFFICULTY OF OBTAINING THEM FOR EXHIBITION.

Julius Caesar Was the First to Import Them for the Amusement and Entertainment of the Roman People. England Saw Several in 1836.

The first giraffe seen in Europe since the tertiary epoch was obtained from Alexandria by Julius Caesar and exhibited at the Circus in games to crowds who expected from its name, "camelopard," to find in it a combination of the size of a camel and the ferocity of a panther. Pliny, who described it, echoed the public disappointment. "It was as quiet," he wrote, "as a sheep."

The trade probably reached its maximum after it became the fashion to exhibit combats of wild beasts at Rome; yet even then giraffes seem to have been scarce in the popular shows, though Pompey could exhibit 500 lions at a time, and the Emperor Titus, at the dedication of his new theater, caused the slaughter of 5,000 wild beasts. Either the number of wild animals in the provinces must have been beyond anything since known, or the Roman governors must have used their despotic powers freely to oblige their friends.

Despots are the best collectors, and from the fall of the Roman empire till the arrival of those placed in the zoological gardens in 1836 the rare appearances of the giraffe in Europe were in each case due to the munificence of eastern sultans and pashas. The prince of Damascus gave one to the Emperor Frederick II in 1235, and the sultan of Egypt presented another to Lorenzo the Magnificent, which became the pet of Florence, and used to be allowed to walk in the streets and take the presents of fruit and cakes extended to it from the balconies. From this time the giraffe was not seen in Europe until in 1827 the pasha of Egypt sent four to Constantinople, Venice, England and France respectively.

The giraffe sent to England was in bad health and soon died, but the Parisians went wild over the pasha's present. It had spent the winter at Marseilles, and throve there on the milk of the cows which the pasha had sent over for its use from Egypt. The prefect of Marseilles had the arms of France embroidered on its body cloth, and it entered Paris escorted by a Dardour negro, Hassan, an Arab; a Marseilles groom, a mulatto interpreter, the prefect of Marseilles himself, and a professor from the "Jardin des Plantes," while troops kept back the crowd. "Thousands came every day to see it, and men and women wore gloves, gowns and waistcoats of the color of its spots."

But the successful expenditure by which, in 1836, M. Thibaut procured a stock of giraffes for the Zoological society owed nothing to the patronage of the pasha of Egypt beyond permission to enter the Sudan. The caravan left the Nile near Dongola, and thence passed on to the desert of Kordofan. There M. Thibaut engaged the services of the Arab sword hunters, whose skill and courage were of such service to Sir Samuel Baker in his expedition thirty years later to the sources of the Nile tributaries, and in two days they sighted the giraffes.

A female with a fawn was first pursued by the Arabs, who killed the animal with their swords, and next day tracked and caught the fawn in the thorny mimosa scrub. For four days the young giraffe was secured by a cord, the end of which was held by one of the Arabs; at the end of that time it was perfectly tame, and trotted after the caravan with the female camels which had been brought to supply it with milk. The Arabs were excellent nurses, and taught the young creature to drink milk by putting their fingers into its mouth and so inducing it to suck.

Four others which M. Thibaut caught died in the cold weather in the desert. But he replaced three of these and brought four, including the first taken, down the Nile to Alexandria, and then by ship to Malta. "Providence alone," he wrote, "enabled me to surmount these difficulties." From Malta they were brought to London and safely lodged in the Zoological gardens in the summer of 1838. The largest was then about eleven feet high, the height of an adult male being twelve feet at the shoulders and eighteen feet at the head. For many years, as we have said, the giraffes thrived and multiplied. They readily took to European food, and ate hay and fresh grass from the racks with which their stables were fitted.

Onions and sugar were their favorite delicacies, and in search of sugar they would follow their keepers and slip their long prehensile tongues into his hands or pockets. But they always retained a liking for eating flowers, a reminiscence perhaps of the days when their parents feasted on mimosa blossoms in the desert; some time ago one was seen to stretch its neck over the railings and to delicately nip off an artificial rose in a young lady's hat. They were more affectionate creatures, and, as M. Thibaut noticed when in charge of them in upper Egypt, would shed tears if they missed their companions or their usual attendants.

But the development of the lachrymal ducts, which enable the giraffe to express its emotions in this very human fashion, is less obvious than the wonderful size and beauty of the eyes themselves, which are far larger than those of any other quadruped. While the madd's power remains unbroken at Khartoum, there is little probability that the Sudan traders will be able to supply any giraffes to occupy the empty house in Regent's park.—London Spectator.

A Congressman's Great Speech.

The other day I was listening to a congressman relating to a small circle his experience at a recent convention. I will make a secret of his name, as I propose to live long and uninterruptedly in the land which the Lord elected, and in no wise crave to be cut off in the bustling morning of my days. The fact is, this statesman is a very broad, athletic one, of a shifty and unceremonious temper.

"Yez should have heard me speech," he said. "It was a lulu. And I paid me respects to Congress, too, me boy. I told em the way matters had been mishmanged we wouldn't have the money to meet the expences of the pristin physical year. Thin I bore down on the hypnoizin practised in this house."

"The hypnoizin?" queried a listener.

"Yis, the hypnoizin. The appointment of all thim sons and re-latatives of congressmen to lococative stipends. Here's the b'ys of three congressmen on the page's roll now, be hivins, earnin their seventy-five dollars a month the year 'round and them b'ys, mind yez, only nine and tin years old, and the legs of thin no bigger than spindles. I should say it was hypnoizin."

"And to tin," continued the congressman, "whin our man went through all right I jumped up and moved to make his nomenation ceremonious, and thin the foon began."

"Unanimous, you mean," corrected an auditor.

"Well, phwativer it is, I done it, but they voted it down. All the same he's nomenated, which is what we were after."—Washington Cor. Kansas City Times.

Raisinmaking Bombs.

A company engaged in the manufacture of explosives in this city has for sale now small bombs about the size of frankfurter sausages, with which it is said the farmer can bring down small showers of rain whenever he sees clouds over his land.

The constituents of one bomb are divided into two parts, liquid and solid, which are both separately nonexplosive. These can be kept separate until the time comes to use them, when they are mixed.

The solid part is about an inch in diameter and eight inches in length, and is wrapped in cotton. These bombs are placed in grooved tin boxes, each holding ten. A small tin measure, containing the liquid part, accompanies each box. It is graduated to show the quantity needed to saturate the bomb to the exploding point.

Five or fifty bombs may be used, according to the amount of rain needed or the detonation required. How the farmer is to know how much detonation is needed is a dubious matter. The bombs are tied in a bundle, a time fuse is attached and the whole lot discharged from a mortar and at the passing cloud.

In hilly countries clouds often pass over the valleys and discharge their contents on the barren mountain sides. In such regions, it is said, the bombs will be particularly useful.—New York World.

A City Marshal Abroad.

One of the city marshals who took a vacation recently and went to France found what a big man a marshal over there is and how much a marshal's badge amounts to. He started to go to several places of public interest in Paris at an hour when they were not open to the public. At the entrance he was stopped and told that the places were closed. He said that he was an American and had only a short time to stay in Paris, and that if he could not get in then it would be too late. That made no difference until he happened to put his hand in his trousers pocket for some change with which to try to bribe the attendant. His coat was unbuttoned, and his arm pulling back the lapel showed his big city marshal's badge in blue, gold and gilt, with the word "Marshal" on it in big enough to be read ten feet away. As soon as the Frenchman saw the word marshal he became obsequious. The American marshal, as the city marshal became known, was shown around with a great deal of consideration, and the Frenchman declined to accept a fee.—New York Sun.

She Appealed to His Patriotism.

A friend of mine has a "polly" that is very talkative. Sunday he put the bird on the parlor window sill. Polly preyed the first sight of a policeman who was just passing by, who was also a member of the A. O. H., and shouted at him, "What a hat!" The policeman turned around, and seeing no one near, turned to go away. No sooner had he turned his back than Polly again shouted at him. This time Polly was caught. The policeman drew his club, and shaking it at Polly, said: "It's you is it? It's a good thing you're a polly, for if it wasn't for your color I'd shoot ye."—New York Recorder.

A PLAN TO RAISE FUNDS.

The State Silver Convention of Colorado authorized and directed the Executive Committee of the Silver party to publicly select a day in the near future to be designated "Silver Day," upon which the friends of silver throughout the State should be earnestly requested to set aside and pay to the Treasurer of the Silver League a certain portion of their income for that day, the money so raised to be expended by the State League in carrying out the work of the party. That work is the thorough organization of the silver forces, the distribution of silver literature and the advancement of the cause of remonetization.

Insurance men, whose business it is to keep thoroughly informed, tell the Executive Committee of the Silver party that where one year ago 13,000 men were employed in the gold and silver mines of Colorado there are now but 8,000, and competent men engaged in smelting and milling estimate a decrease in the value of the output of the precious metals of from $3,000,000 to $11,000,000 from 1891, all of which is directly due to the fall in the price of silver.

The fight which is being waged by the Cleveland and Harrison parties against the material interests of the silver-producing States was never so fierce as now, but fortunately the masses of the people were never so thoroughly united as now. There is but one course for the silver men to pursue and that is to make an aggressive fight, or unparalleled depression in business will be the result. Every man, the banker and mine owner as well as the farmer and laborer, is directly and vitally interested.

As the demand for literature pertaining to the silver question is increasing the Committee recommends that on Monday, August 15th, everybody get apart a small percentage of his income for the cause of silver, so that papers and periodicals containing articles on the subject can be procured and distributed.

As the situation is the same in Nevada as in Colorado similar action ought to be taken by the Nevada Silver party. The party has no Federal officers to which and no favored monopolists from which to "fry fat." It is therefore short of funds to pay for legitimate work and the Executive Committee should appeal to the people to help the cause by contributing more or less in proportion to their means to fight the minions of Wall Street. A few thousand dollars with which to thoroughly organize the silver forces of Nevada and furnish them with free coinage papers would make the voters practically unanimous for Presidential Electors, Senator and Representative in November.

SILVER PARTY PLATFORM.

The platform of resolutions adopted by the Silver party of Nevada in State Convention assembled in Reno, June 24, 1892, is published in this issue of the JOURNAL. The platform, which was adopted unanimously, demands the full remonetization of silver and the free and unlimited coinage thereof at the ratio of 16 to 1. Is there any citizen of Nevada who objects to that? It declares that the citizens of Nevada, members of the various Silver Leagues, irrespective of past party affiliations, are radically opposed to the national Republican and Democratic parties on the question of free coinage of silver, and denounce the action of their recent national conventions and repudiate the nominees of those conventions. Isn't that true? and isn't the rebuke deserved? Why should any person who desires to see Nevada prosperous advocate the election of either Harrison or Cleveland? It pledges the Presidential Electors of the Silver party to support no man for President or Vice President of the United States who is not unqualifiedly in favor of free coinage as defined by the convention, that is at the ratio of 16 grains of silver to 1 grain of gold. Is there a business man, farmer, miner, artisan, workman, in fact any body in the State, except a few tax-eaters, who objects to that pledge? It reserves to the Silver Leagues in State Convention assembled the right of directing the said Presidential Electors for whom to cast their votes should contingency require.

When these resolutions were adopted there were but two dominations made for President, the Republican and Democratic, and both were against free coinage. These the platform repudiate because of their hostility to silver. Since then, however, General Weaver was nominated for President on a platform which demand the free and unlimited coinage of silver and gold at a ratio of 16 to 1. This is identical with the Silver party's free coinage plank, consequently, unless the Silver Leagues of the State give directions to the contrary, the Presidential Electors would vote for the nominees of the Omaha Convention. The convention, however, reserved to the Silver Leagues the right to direct the electors for whom to vote for President and Vice President of the United States.

WHY NOT ACT SENSIBLE AND CONSISTENT?

Nearly every person in the State of Nevada, including those who held Federal office under Cleveland and their successors under Harrison, pretend to favor the free coinage of silver as well as gold at the ratio of the United States. The principles of the Harrison party as promulgated at Minneapolis and of the Cleveland party as enunciated at Chicago prove beyond doubt or question that neither party is in favor of free coinage at the ratio of 16 grains of silver to 1 grain of gold. This being a fact beyond dispute it ought to satisfy every honest and candid man that neither party favors the remonetization of silver. As there is an electoral ticket in the field in Nevada, nominated by a convention of representative men and pledged against Harrison and Cleveland, why should not every real friend of silver support that ticket? Surely if the few Democrats and Republicans who cling to the old party names and organizations desire to maintain their self-respect and be consistent they will, instead of creating strife and discord among free coinage men, join with them and for the common weal support the Silver party Presidential Electors. Those who do so should at least have the manliness to show their true colors and not pretend to be free coinage men while advocating the election of a Wall Street candidate.

A meeting of the Washoe county Silver League will be held this week and Senator Stewart and Mr. Newlands will probably be the principle speakers. Both are in line with the League in its efforts to advance the national interests of the State, and both have a world-wide reputation as free coinage advocates—one as United States Senator and the other as Vice President of the National Bi-Metallic League.

The British Parliament assembled on Thursday in a formal manner but will not transact any business until next week. Gladstone was enthusiastically received in the Commons. The Irish members rose in a body and were joined by the Liberals waving their hats and cheering.

Men who have the interests of the State at heart are daily joining the Silver League.

Run Over and Killed.

This morning about 12:30 as the JOURNAL composers were laboring under the bright glare of the lamps, with no sound to break the stillness save the musical click of the types, in rushed Mr. F. C. Updike with the startling news that a squaw was lying on the track opposite the residence of Richmond Smith, with her body dismembered and lacerated. A JOURNAL reporter forthwith started for the scene of the accident and was rewarded by seeing a squaw lying on her back nearly nude and with one leg and hand cut off. The body had apparently been struck by the east-bound 10:10 train, at the west end of the trestle at that point, as the right lower limb was found at that place, and dragged to the other end. It is supposed that she was intoxicated and sitting on the track, as Mr. Updike states that he saw two squaws as he was coming down town earlier in the evening, one sober and the other intoxicated, and told them both to go home. Coroner Peers was immediately notified and had the body removed.

The Last Hope.

D. O. Mills has succeeded in awakening a slight flame in the almost extinguished spark of hope in the bosoms of the surviving straight parties. It is now heralded that he will open his financial headquarters in San Francisco and issue the sinews of war on this coast for the Republican campaign to carry the Pacific States without reason-in-law, Whitehead Reid. Without desiring to destroy the hope and add the last straw to the poor old straight party camel's back, there is not money enough possessed by D. O. Mills to carry the State of Nevada for Harrison and Reid while the Australian ballot is in force.

Situation at Homestead.

PITTSBURGH, August 6.—There is no change in the situation. The Carnegie Company's Union mill is running in a desultory way, Beaver Falls is still closed down, Homestead has about thirteen hundred men at work and mechanics and repairmen are at work at Duquesne. The five men arrested at Duquesne yesterday for riot were released on bail. Fred Trimmer, the Pinkerton arrested on a counter charge of murder preferred by the Amalgamated Association, was released on his own recognizance.

Union Pacific Troubles Settled.

OMAHA, August 6.—At 5 o'clock this afternoon word was received from Boston that the Directors would leave the matter in dispute between the operators and the Union Pacific to President Clark for settlement. The latter was at once telegraphed, and he replied he would leave the decision with Assistant General Manager Dickinson. Dickinson then notified Ramsey, Chief of Telegraphers, that their demands would be acceded to. As a result, the strike scheduled for 6 o'clock this evening was declared off.

The Train Robbers Victim.

VISALIA, Cal., August 6.—The remains of Oscar Beaver, shot by the train robbers this morning, were forwarded to Lemoore this afternoon, his home. His wife was visiting in Rio Vista and was telegraphed to come home early this morning. Beaver was unconscious for several hours previous to death. Seventy-four small shot were found in the body. The death wound was made by buckshot in abdomen and chest. He was a fearless man and has always been in demand by sheriffs when desperate work was required. A large delegation of friends from Hanford and Lemoore accompanied his remains home this evening. The funeral will probably occur to-morrow. The robbers undoubtedly escaped from the barn while the attention of the guard was called to Beaver. None of the guard would approach Beaver after he fell to the ground.

Frank Byrd a brother-in-law of the robber Evans, who was at the house, was united in doing so by ex-Sheriff Overall. However, Beaver lay where he fell 20 minutes before and his groans could be heard blocks away.

It was probably 2 o'clock this morning when the robbers, Evans and Sontag, left the barn and started north toward the mountains. The officers did not leave in pursuit until daylight. The men were easily tracked along the road for four miles when they took to the fields where no tracks were left. About 5 o'clock this morning they were fourteen miles from town and called at the house of ex-Superintendent D. B. Robinson for a drink of water. A few miles further north they came to the ranch of Harry Ward, with whom Evans was well acquainted. They told Ward they had killed a man in Visalia and wanted Ward to supply them with a team. Ward told the desperadoes they could have a mule and cart. They accepted the rig gladly as they were evidently tired of tramping, besides Sontag is just recovering from the use of the leg that he broke a few weeks ago. Ward stated that the men appeared in a cheerful mood.

At 8 o'clock this morning the two fleeing desperadoes passed the residence of J. M. Dyer, 17 miles northeast of Visalia, going toward Stokes Valley. They espied a team coming down the road toward them which caused them to turn back and take a road that leads up Nigger creek and to Drum Valley, Fresno county. Dyer watched them while in sight and then came on to town and left notice at the Sheriff's office. The officers left the city on horseback, and if the robbers went to Stokes Valley, are probably close on the track of them, though nothing had been heard from any of the party up to 7 o'clock this evening.

Evans owns a mine in the mountains northeast of this city and it is believed he has plenty of provisions there.

Report of the House Committee on Homestead.

WASHINGTON, August 6.—Oates, Chairman of the sub-Committee of the House which is investigating the labor troubles at Homestead, submitted a report to the committee, which was not agreed to. No member questioned its correctness, but the Republican members would not assent to what he said upon the tariff, and a majority of the Democratic members of the committee thought it impolitic to make any report until the entire investigation is completed, therefore a postponement of the report was made until next winter.

The report prepared by Oates says the Pinkerton's who surrendered were brutally and outrageously treated, principally by women and boys, and he is loath to believe that any of these women are native Americans. He says the indignities to which they were subjected was disgraceful to civilization.

Oates was asked whether the Carnegie firm was justified in proposing a reduction in wages, and he said the men were paid satisfactory wages, but the work much abbreviates the natural period of life and should be well paid for.

He condemns the McKinley law for its failure to benefit American workmen, and says the promises made to operatives have been disappointing.

Oates finds further that the conduct of the company towards its employees was kind in many respects. It loans them money at low interest to build homes, and never foreclosed mortgages, but in wage negotiations its officers did not exercise patience. Oates is persuaded that if Frick had appealed to the reason of his employees and shown them the state of the company's affairs the reduction might have been made and no trouble follow. The Pennsylvania law contains nothing to prevent Frick from employing Pinkerton men as watchmen, but Oates says that under the circumstances he should not have done so. He made overtures to the Pinkertons before negotiating with the men interested, and did not appeal to county or State authorities in the first instance for protection.

Oates asserts that Sheriff McCleary is a very inefficient officer, but says that had Frick aided him and joined in his appeal to the Governor instead of employing Pinkertons the State would have furnished sufficient force to protect the property.

Oates condemns as unlawful the acts of the workmen in turning away the Sheriff, and says the men had no legal right to resist the coming of the Pinkertons. In conclusion Oates finds Congress has no power over the questions involved.

A Terrible Criminal.

WASHINGTON, Pa., August 6.—Murderer Reed, who escaped from the Washington jail some time since, was located here this evening by the Deputy Sheriff and the Chief of Police of Noblesstown. When found Reed killed the deputy, fatally wounded the Chief of Police and then set fire to the house in which he was and burned himself to death.

The importance of purifying the blood cannot be overestimated, for without pure blood you cannot enjoy good health. At this season, especially, every one needs a good medicine to purify, vitalize, and enrich the blood, and we ask you to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. It strengthens and builds up the system, creates an appetite, and tones the digestion, while it eradicates disease. The peculiar combination, proportion, and preparation of the vegetable remedies used give to Hood's Sarsaparilla peculiar curative powers. No other medicine has such a record of wonderful cures. If you have made up your mind to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to take any other instead. It is a Peculiar Medicine, and is worthy your confidence. Hood's Sarsaparilla is sold by all druggists. Prepared by C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.

The Riverside Photograph Gallery succeeded in taking two good negatives of General Weaver while here. Mr. Holcomb offers to sell the pictures to any one who desires one for $1, and turn sixty cents of the amount into the treasury of the Silver League.

There are four newspapers in Nevada pretending to favor free coinage yet advocating the election of a Wall Street candidate for President. One of the four has commended throwing mud at Senator Stewart, presumably for the reason that the Senator is heart and soul with the Silver party of Nevada in its fight with the gold brokers.

O. W. Cornell, of Willow Point, Humboldt county, an original Republican, writes the JOURNAL that the Harrison-Cleveland organ is sent to Willow Point free gratis for nothing, as a campaign paper, but it has no influence. "Harrison for the People's party, free coinage of silver and General Weaver, and a cheer for the 'Kansas Cyclone'; she is a dandy and no dud!" adds Mr. Cornell.

The Elko Independent says a man was crushed to death by a lot of railroad ties which had been piled up in the shape of a house, falling upon him near Death. The coroner found $156 in gold and greenbacks on the person of deceased, and a roll of blankets, a sack of flour and kit of shoemaker's tools, near the body. It was learned that his name was Wilhelm Ruffelt, a native of Germany, aged about 60 years.

Reno's New Riverside Hotel.

William Thompson was around yesterday getting subscriptions to stock for the $100,000 Riverside Hotel, and the Reno Electric Railroad. Mr. Thompson has subscribed $30,000 himself toward the hotel and the citizens are contributing liberally. The outlook is favorable for the erection of the hotel which will be of great benefit to Reno.

McKINLEY'S TRADE STATISTICS ANALYZED.

Farmer Submits Them to the Light of Facts.

EDITOR JOURNAL:—If Mr. McKinley's speech delivered at Beatrice, Nebraska, was correctly reported in your issue of the 3d inst, he told one of the most glaring falsehoods on record. In that part of his speech relating to the balance of trade he is quoted as saying: "Yet during the last fiscal year we sold abroad nearly $203,000,000 more than we bought abroad. This was an excess in our favor which foreigners paid to us, and which we have at home circulating among our people." Mr. McKinley was surely presuming on the ignorance of his audience when he made the foregoing statement. In place of the $203,000,000 or any part of it being paid to us to settle this balance of trade, statistics show that we actually exported more specie than we imported, and we were simply given credit for so much interest paid on account. The foreigners not only got away with the $203,000,000 balance of trade, but they got some millions of dollars of our specie besides. Perhaps the people of Nebraska would like for Mr. McKinley to explain more fully how this excess in our favor which foreigners paid to us got into circulation.

Now let us see what McKinley says about trade statistics of former periods. McKinley quoted figures to show that under free trade the revenue tariff from 1847 to 1861, the balance of trade against us was more than $431,000,000. In fifteen years from 1876 to 1891 with protection the balance of trade in our favor was $1,649,455,246. Mr. McKinley did not tell his large audience that this enormous sum had been paid to us by the foreigners and was now circulating among our people, probably for the reason that the Director of the Mint in his last report did not think there was that amount of money available for circulation in the United States. Now, as a matter of fact, statistics show for the fifteen years ending June 30, 1891, that the foreigners settled this $1,649,455,246, which McKinley says was in our favor, by collecting $57,398,744 of our specie and bullion. I presume this also was credited to the interest account. If McKinley would pay more attention to finance and the movement of the precious metals he would not make such wild statements about the large sums the foreigners are paying us to settle trade balances.

Mr. McKinley is very cute about arranging dates to pick trade statistics from to prove that protection is a blessing. The Democrat that replies to him will undoubtedly take the fifteen years ending June 30, 1876, and will show by statistics from the Treasury Department that the balance of trade, including balances in the movement in the precious metals, was so enormously against us as to make the $431,000,000 that was against us for the fifteen years ending June 30, 1861, seem insignificant.

The goldbug-Democratic-Republican combination have issued their ultimatum and the tariff sham battle is now being fought. McKinley is Commander-in-Chief of the Union force, while Carlisle, in the absence of Wattersen, is leading the Cleveland-hosts. The millionaire bondholders are viewing the struggle with intense interest and contribute liberally towards furnishing blank cartridges to prolong the fight.

SIXTY MILLIONS OF DOLLARS.

The Wealthiest Train that Ever Crossed the Continent.

Enough gold passed through Reno yesterday morning on a special train to give every man, woman and child outside the State of New York in this country a dollar apiece—sixty millions of dollars all told. It was the wealthiest train that ever crossed the Continent. It consisted of six cars, and if one could have been successful in seeing the inside of five of those cars he would have found them filled with a large number of wooden boxes, each containing $25,000 in gold coin. There were, therefore, 1,200 boxes, containing enough cash in each to have supplied the wants of most of us who live on three meals a day for some time to come.

A further investigation would have disclosed the fact that each car was guarded by five resolute looking messengers, who carried Winchester and had pistols in their belts. It is probable, therefore, that the train will reach its destination safely. That $60,000,000 is money which belongs to the people of the United States, which, under the present self-lauded financial system of that paragon of millionaires, Mr. John Sherman, piles up in treasury vaults and National banks instead of circulating in the hands of the people who need it, so every few years it has to be transported to the greater accommodations afforded by the Sub-Treasury and guarded on the way from the people who nominally own it by armed messengers.

The gold is from the San Francisco Mint where most of it has laid for the last fourteen years and is being removed to New York. It is thought and doubtless wisely, that such a treasure should not be kept in so exposed a place as San Francisco. Capt. J. E. White of Washington had charge of the treasure. The guards were nearly all from the Railway Mail Service and were picked men.

FOSTER'S WEATHER FORECASTS.

Approaching Storm Waves.
Copyrighted 1892 by W. T. Foster.

St. Joseph, Mo., August 5, 1892.
My last bulletin gave forecasts of the storm wave to cross the continent from August 9th to 13th, and the next will reach the Pacific Coast about the 14th, cross the western mountains by the close of the 15th, the great central valleys from the 16th to 18th and the eastern States about the 19th. This will be an average storm in force, preceded by excessively hot weather and followed by a moderately cool wave which will move eastward across the western mountains about the 17th, the great central valley about the 19th and the eastern States about the 21st.

The term great central valleys used in these forecasts, includes all the country lying east of the Rocky Mountains and west of the Alleghenies. It also includes Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Michigan, Ohio and Wisconsin.

The most dangerous storm wave of August will reach the Pacific Coast about the 20th, cross the western mountains by the close of the 21st, the great central valleys from the 22d to 24th and the eastern States about the 25th. This storm will begin to increase in force about the 23d, when near the Mississippi river, and will become a dangerous storm in the upper Ohio valley and the eastern States about the 24th and 25th.

A moderately cool wave will cross the western mountains about the 23d, the great central valleys about the 25th and the eastern States about the 27th. The weather, however, will average excessively hot during the last half of August, with local droughts and excessive rains in places.

THEY GOT MARRIED.

A Romance of Mount House and Empire Which Culminated in an Elopement.

For a long time past James Reagan of Mount House has been courting pretty Lena Baxter of Empire and although his suit progressed favorably as far as Lena was concerned, there was a surprising lack of cordiality in the matter from her parents. Matters went on in this way for some time, the young couple loving each other as the breach which seemed to separate irrevocably their desires of union widened.

At last they decided to elope and last evening was set for the attempt. In the meantime Lena's brother Jo was taken into their confidence. He had always thought well of James Reagan, who aspired for his sister's hand, and after gentle persuasion from both consented to aid them.

Last evening as the train stopped at Brunswick the three boarded it and came down to Reno. County Clerk Perry was found in a few minutes and issued the proper license. Justice Lian was discovered and invited over to the Clarendon, where in the presence of several witnesses he made Lena Baxter and James Reagan man and wife, and so many they live and enjoy a long and prosperous life is the sincere wish of the JOURNAL.

PLATFORM OF THE SILVER PARTY.

Adopted in State Convention at Reno, June 24th, 1892.

The citizens of Nevada, representatives of the various Silver Leagues, irrespective of past party affiliations, in convention assembled, do set forth the following declaration of principles:

First.—We demand the full remonetization of silver and the free and unlimited coinage thereof at the present ratio of sixteen to one.

Second.—We are radically and unalterably opposed to the National Republican and Democratic parties on the question of the free coinage of silver, and we denounce the action of their recent National Conventions as inimical to the material interests of the people of the United States, and especially to those of Nevada and all the other mining States and Territories; and we hereby repudiate the nominees of their conventions.

Third.—We pledge the nominees of this Convention for Presidential Electors, to support no man for President or Vice President of the United States who is not unqualifiedly in favor of free coinage as defined by this convention. We reserve to the Silver Leagues of Nevada, in State Convention assembled, the right of directing said Presidential Electors for whom to cast their votes, should contingencies require.

The hearing at Boise, Idaho, in the case of miners charged with contempt of court in violating an injunction by their attack on the Gem mine will continue this week. Some sensational testimony is looked for from one Allison, who joined the union as a spy and was elected Secretary.

Coming To Nevada!

DR. ARCHIBALD C. STODDART

San Francisco's oldest and most successful Specialist, Senior Physician of the Arm of Dr. Liebig & Co., also President of the Liebig World Dispensary of Kansas City, Missouri, and San Francisco, California, the largest combined and incorporated medical and surgical institution in the United States, will personally visit

Reno, Monday August 8, 1892

AND HAVE OFFICE AT

Palace Hotel, Opp. Depot.

This will be a rare opportunity for the citizens of Nevada to meet and have a free consultation with the greatest chronic disease surgeon and physician of our great cities right here in Reno. The staff of the Liebig World Dispensary are known to be the most successful physicians and surgeons for the cure of chronic, nervous, private, wasting and complicated diseases on the Pacific Coast. The reputation, success and reliability of Dr. Liebig & Co. are already too well known to the citizens of Nevada in the treatment of chronic diseases to require mention in this card. They have had an enormous practice in San Francisco for the past twenty-five years, and were the first specialists who ever visited this State from San Francisco.

All persons suffering from diseases of the eye, ear, nose, throat, blood, nervous system, from weakness, loss of vitality and manhood, chronic troubles resulting from incorrect treatment, or neglect, and private or complicated chronic diseases should call upon Dr. Stoddart at Reno, on the day named, Monday, August 8, 1892.

WOMEN AND CHILDREN.—Definitely cases requiring surgical or medical attention should call upon themselves of this chance to call upon the renowned surgeon.

On account of the enormous increase in practice all over the coast, the time given is limited to only one day in Reno, and persons desiring to see Dr. Stoddart or do business with Dr. Liebig & Co. of the Liebig World Dispensary should call promptly on above date.

Thousands of testimonials could be published of cures made all over the west country, but the standing and reputation of Drs. Stoddart, Liebig & Co. are too well known in Nevada to require testimonials. Beware of so-called physicians, who usually run in a false and false way, and who are not to be trusted. Should you fail to meet the Doctor, write full particulars of your case to the Liebig World Dispensary, 400 Geary street, San Francisco, Cal., and you will receive careful attention by corresponding surgeon.

Call early during office hours, as the office will be closed all over the afternoon and evening. Consultation and examination will be free, and all are welcome.

NOTICE.—Measurements made for braces and appliances for deformed persons, and contracts made for same, and treatment by International Surgical Institute.

AN EXPLANATION AND ANSWER.

WHAT IS WINTERILLA?

Why, it is a pleasant and effective remedy for the positive cure of Chapped Hands, Poison Oak, Salt Rheum, Eczema, Sun Burn, Tan, etc. It positively removes freckles, and is one of the grandest luxuries for gentlemen after shaving. This is an exquisite article prepared with the greatest care by scientific experts. Its component parts are perfectly harmless, and the odorous toilet is not complete without it. One trial will convince the most skeptical that what we say of WINTERILLA is true. For sale by all druggists in 25c and 50c bottles.

PATTI'S WONDERFUL WARDROBE.

Her Collection of Emeralds Put to Shame the Majority of Royal Gowns.

Patti's wardrobe is something that fashion writers rave over. At every performance she of course wears the newest concert costume. In the opera that follows she wears the dress requisite for the part she plays. The concert costumes are the productions of the first Parisian milliner, and one may be sure that the wily milliner, getting an order from Patti, would exert himself for this queen of song as he would for no crowned head.

Her jewels are the most elaborate worn by any woman outside of royalty, and even royalty's gems fade before her matchless collection of emeralds. In some concerts Mme. Patti wears a costume of pink and silver brocade, over which is worn a delicate green satin de imperatrice. With this costume she wears a dog collar of emeralds set with diamonds, a bouquet of roses made of diamonds and emeralds completely covering the front of her bodice. Also a tiara, garniture and comb of emeralds and diamonds. This bit of jeweled ornament is said to be worth over $50,000. It is a peculiarity of Patti's that she will wear nothing in the way of decoration but what is absolutely real.

The jewel box and jewels in "Patti" are her own, and the pearls are positively real. Her corset, whenever she sings, is on the stage, waits for madame in the wings and accompanies her from the stage to the dressing room—that is, when her careful husband, Signor Nicolini, is not around. He is very careful of his precious wife, and she is never on the stage but that he is an intent observer of everything that is going on.

Patti's passion, of course, is her appearance before the public. She is one of those creatures who, without the excitement of public applause, could hardly exist. The applause of the public is positively meat and drink for her. There is no debutante more eager to know whether she has done well than is Patti at this day. She comes off the stage smiling and pleased.

Her eyes sparkle, and the first thing she asks her husband is: "Well, was that good? Listen how pleased they are." On being reassured that she is the darling of the public's heart, she is in an ecstasy of pleasure, and for the next performance she is all the more eager to do her best. It is this wonderful desire to be at her best that upholds her in her magnificent art.

There are a few people who have achieved the fortune, the fame and the great notoriety that Patti has who would deny themselves the many human privileges that she does merely to preserve her voice and to be able to maintain the matchless charm of her art.

At every hotel where rooms are engaged for herself special stipulation is made and rooms selected for her servants as well. The price is never an object. Mme. Patti and suite generally occupy about ten rooms and a parlor in every city in which she sings. She gives two concerts a week, and never travels on the day she sings. She requires perfect rest and refuses to speak to any one on the day of a concert.—Spare Moments.

Troublesome Seals.

The salmon fishermen down the river and bay are having trouble this spring from the seals, as usual. These pests are multiplying rather than decreasing and are causing great losses to the weir. While the seals of the arctic regions have the reputation of being slow, stupid animals, hunters killing them with clubs, those on the Maine coast are the sharpest game to be found. They will go in and out of the salmon weirs, either by force or strategy, and eat all the fish they want. They are very hard to get a shot at, and when hit sink to the bottom, the carcasses thus "sunk" lost to the gunner. One fisherman remarked on a recent Saturday that there was a small fortune in store for the man who would invent a trap that would catch seals and hold them. The bounty upon them doesn't seem to do a bit of good.—Bangor (Me.) Commercial.

Long Services in Wales.

In Wales the Sunday evening services generally last two hours. Now there can be little doubt that a service lasting two hours on a summer evening is considered too long by working men and women who have been hard at work six days running. If our chapels are to retain their hold, especially in English towns, the services must be made shorter. I have seen an advertisement from which it appeared that in one Nonconformist chapel the services are "brief, bright, brotherly." But that was not in Wales.—Liverpool Mercury.

How Ants Are Eaten.

Ants are eaten by several of the minor nations. In Egypt they are eaten raw, with sugar; in Brazil they are served with a resinous sauce, and in East India stewed in buffalo grease or fried in butter.—St. Louis Republic.

Deceptive Enumeration.

Fellow—My last offer of marriage was flattering, but I refused it.
Rowen—Well, no girl ought to accept her first proposal.—Kate Field's Washington.

Oh, this ringing in the ears!

Oh, this humming in the head! Hawking, blowing, snuffing, gasping, Watery eyes and throat a-rawping, Health impaired and comfort fled, Till I would that I were dead!

What folly to suffer so with catarrhal troubles, when the worst cases of chronic catarrh in the head are relieved and cured by the mild, cleansing and healing properties of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. It purifies the foul breath, by removing the cause of offense, heals the inflamed passages, and perfects a lasting cure.

"German Syrup"

A Throat and Lung Specialty.

Those who have not used Boschee's German Syrup for some severe and chronic trouble of the Throat and Lungs can hardly appreciate what a truly wonderful medicine it is. The delicious sensations of healing, easing, clearing, strength-gathering and recovering are unknown joys. For German Syrup we do not ask easy cases. Sugar and water may smooth a throat or stop a tickling—for a while. This is as far as the ordinary cough medicine goes. Boschee's German Syrup is a discovery, a great Throat and Lung Specialty. Where for years there have been sensitiveness, pain, coughing, spitting, hemorrhage, voice failure, weakness, slipping down hill, where doctors and medicine and advice have been swallowed and followed to the gulf of despair, where there is the sickening conviction that all is over and the end is inevitable, there we place German Syrup. It cures. You are a live man yet if you take it.

A PLEA FOR MOTHERS.

An Amendment Offered to the Advice of a Woman Lecturer.

A few evenings ago a Boston woman journalist, who writes the essays about bookmarks, gluten bread, dress reform corsets and the like for the woman's column of a Sunday paper, read a lecture to a parlor full of Harlem women. Her subject was "How to Bring Up Children."

One thing that she insisted on was that children should be taught to "do things," to be prepared for emergencies. "For example," said she, "I would teach a child what to do in case of a fainting fit. I say to my girls: 'Girls, I am not much of a hand at fainting, but if I do take a notion to faint some day when you are about, get me some water. Pour it on my head and face. Cold water, girls, not hot water.'"

"I'm sure that if the unexpected comes and I fall in a fainting fit some fine morning, the girls, if they happen to be near, will know what to do and will do it promptly."

"May I interrupt you for a moment?" asked a little brown haired woman, who looked to be about fifty.

"Why, certainly," answered the lecturer.

"Well, what I wish to do," said the brown haired woman, "is to take issue with you on this proposition of yours that it is the proper thing to instruct children what to do to their mothers when they faint. On other points I have nothing to say. Maybe you are right in the general proposition that children should be taught to do things, but as to this matter I wish to utter warning word, to offer an amendment, so to speak."

"I used to think as you do. I remember as well as can be how I used to tell my girls to do the very thing that you say you told yours to do. I thought as you do, that it would be a shame to leave any person who should faint in the presence of my girls go without proper care. So I used to say: 'Remember, girls, to use water. That's the thing when a baby faints.'"

"Well, one day some one came to my house and told me that a little boy had been hurt in the next yard. I was almost ill at the time, but just the same I rushed out to the scene. The little chap was badly hurt, and it took me quite awhile to get him in such a way that I could safely leave him. But the time came at last, and I started for home."

"When I was within about a rod of my own house I grew dizzy and saw stars and then fell in a heap in the gutter."

"A couple of Irishmen picked me up, each taking an arm, and dragged me up my front steps and laid me out on the piazza. Then they rang the bell, and when my daughter Isabelle came to the door one of them pointed at me and said: 'Good evenin, miss, an is that yer mother there, lyin all in a heap dead fainted away?'"

"Isabelle gave one look and then called out to her two sisters, 'Quick, girls, ma's fainted.'"

"After that the deluge! Yes, that tells the story. Isabelle got the ice pitcher, Mary a foot tub and Kate a ten quart tin pail. I consider it almost a miracle that I'm alive today."

"Of course I'm telling all this from hearsay. I didn't know anything from time that I fainted until I heard Kate frantically crying out: 'Water! More water! Quick, Isabelle, more water!' and just after that one of the Irishmen saying, 'Be easy, darlint, or ye'll be after drownin yer old mother!'"

"Well! Well, that doesn't begin to tell the story. I was soaked, and great streams of water were running off the piazza and down the stairs."

"You did just right girls," I said as soon as I could speak. 'You did just what your mother told you to do, but don't do again.'"

"The girls got down on my knees and wrung out my shirts as well as I could and while I was in that position I could hardly keep myself from saying, 'Oh Lord, I thank thee that they didn't call out the fire department.'"

"Now, I've taken up lots of your time, but I wished to make an amendment to your proposition. What I would propose is that every mother save her own self from the danger of drowning by saying to her girls when she bids them pour water on 'fainters,' 'Be sure my dears to try the remedy for the first time on somebody else than your own dear mamma.'"—New York Times.

Telling About It.

An old lady is said to have been asked how to tell good indigo. "Powder the indigo," said she, "sprinkle it upon cold water, and if it is good it will either sink or swim, I have forgotten which."

It was the same with Aunt Charity's eggs. "Jest take a dozen of 'em—no, a half a dozen of 'em—no, it's a dozen—well, rasy, I can't say, but it's either a dozen or a half dozen—and you put 'em in a pailful—no, a half pailful—part full—no, it's a pailful—no—well, well, it's either a pailful or a half pailful of water—and the good eggs will swim on top—no, the good eggs will sink to the bottom—no, that's not it—the good eggs will swim—no, no, I declare, I don't rasy know, but, anyway, the good eggs will either sink or swim."—Housekeeper.

Satan's Sign Manual.

A Bates county farmer saw a bolt of lightning strike in the center of one of his fields, and being curious to see the effects, the stroke visited the spot. He found the subtle fluid had left its mark in the shape of an enormous "D" of an angry red color, and had no doubt that it was the sign manual of the arch fiend himself.—Kansas City Journal.
